ABOUT

SCHOOL OF LAW AND JUSTICE

Having been established in the year 2015 and then constantly marching with the torch of legal education, we have a vision to impart justice-oriented education and on-field knowledge. Our teachers, including our Hon'ble retired judges, empower students through individual attention, extensive as well as intensive law study, and clinical education. At the School of Law and Justice, Adamas University, law and justice education is given great importance. In addition to law teaching, we focus on the development of skills for critical and prudential judgment to make our students great professionals, as the principal goal of legal education is formative rather than informative.

FROM THE DESK OF
CHANCELLOR, ADAMAS UNIVERSITY

Law does not operate in isolation; it evolves in response to the most complex and pressing questions of its time. In an era marked by developmental aspirations, environmental consciousness, constitutional accountability, and strategic national interests, the legal system is often called upon to reconcile competing claims of progress and preservation.

The moot proposition for the 6th Adamas Moot Court Competition reflects precisely such a constitutional crossroads. It engages with intricate questions concerning indigenous rights, interpretation of the Forest Rights Act, the doctrine of eminent domain, environmental sustainability, strategic mineral security, and the role of international law within domestic jurisprudence. The problem invites participants to examine whether development can proceed without eroding cultural identity, whether consultation suffices where consent is demanded, and whether constitutional guarantees yield to national interest.

The School of Law and Justice (SOLJ), Adamas University, remains committed to fostering academic excellence and advocacy training through intellectually stimulating platforms. The 6th edition of our National Moot Court Competition continues our tradition of presenting contemporary, socially relevant, and constitutionally significant legal challenges.

I extend my sincere appreciation to the Adamas Law Moot Court Committee (ALMCC) for conceptualising and organising a moot problem that captures the tensions between economic development, environmental protection, indigenous autonomy, and national security. Such themes encourage participants to move beyond conventional argumentation and engage with law as an instrument of justice and governance.

I warmly welcome all participating teams from across the nation. May this Competition inspire thoughtful deliberation, principled advocacy, and a deeper understanding of the constitutional values that shape our legal system.

I wish the 6th Adamas Moot Court Competition great success.

Prof. (Dr.) SAMIT RAY
Hon'ble Founder Chancellor,
Adamas University,
Chairman - RICE Adamas Group.

FROM THE DESK OF

VICE- CHANCELLOR, ADAMAS UNIVERSITY

Law today is not merely a reflection of society; it is an instrument that shapes and regulates the complex realities of governance, development, and justice. As nations pursue economic growth, strategic autonomy, and technological advancement, the legal system is increasingly called upon to balance competing constitutional values. Questions concerning indigenous rights, environmental sustainability, mineral sovereignty, cultural preservation, and national security present profound challenges that demand nuanced judicial interpretation.

The School of Law and Justice (SOLJ), Adamas University, is proud to provide a national platform for aspiring legal professionals to engage with such pressing and complex issues. Through this Competition, we seek to foster analytical precision, persuasive advocacy, and socially conscious legal reasoning among participants.

Adamas University remains steadfast in its commitment to excellence across disciplines including Engineering, Law, Management, Social Sciences, Media, and Pharmacy. Within this academic ecosystem, the School of Law and Justice continues to nurture future advocates and jurists equipped to address the evolving challenges of constitutional governance.

Having successfully conducted multiple National level Moot Court Competitions and intra-institutional editions, we now look forward with great enthusiasm to the successful accomplishment of the 6th Adamas Moot Court Competition. Each edition strengthens our resolve to create a meaningful platform for intellectual engagement and professional growth.

I extend my heartfelt congratulations to the School of Law and Justice and the Adamas Law Moot Court Committee (ALMCC) for conceptualising a moot problem of such constitutional depth and contemporary relevance. I convey my sincere best wishes for the grand success of this prestigious event.

Finally, I warmly welcome all participating teams from across the nation. May your research, advocacy, and creative legal reasoning contribute to the continued excellence of our annual flagship competition.

Professor SURANJAN DAS

Hon'ble Vice Chancellor,
Adamas University.

FROM THE DESK OF DEAN, SCHOOL OF LAW & JUSTICE

I am proud to announce that the School of Law and Justice is organising its 6th Adamas Moot Court Competition, continuing the legacy of excellence established through our previous National level Moot Court Competitions, which witnessed enthusiastic participation from legal aspirants across the country. Each edition has strengthened our commitment to fostering advocacy skills, constitutional reasoning, and academic rigour among budding legal professionals.

This year, we present a moot proposition that engages with one of the most complex and pressing constitutional dilemmas of our time, the intersection of indigenous rights, environmental protection, mineral sovereignty, and national strategic interests. The problem invites participants to deliberate upon critical questions concerning the interpretation of the Forest Rights framework, the scope of fundamental rights, the doctrine of eminent domain, and the relevance of international principles such as Free, Prior and Informed Consent in domestic jurisprudence.

In an era marked by developmental aspirations and increasing demand for strategic resources, courts are frequently required to balance economic growth with ecological sustainability and cultural preservation. The evolving jurisprudence on proportionality, sustainable development, inter-generational equity, and constitutional morality makes this field both intellectually challenging and socially significant. Through this Competition, we aim to provide participants with a platform to explore these competing values and present structured, persuasive, and policy-sensitive arguments before a simulated constitutional bench.

I warmly welcome all aspiring legal minds to this prestigious competition and encourage them to engage deeply with the issues, refine their arguments, and contribute meaningfully to the discourse. I also extend my heartfelt appreciation and best wishes to the Adamas Law Moot Court Committee (ALMCC) for conceptualising such a thought-provoking proposition and for their dedication in organising this flagship event.

ABOUT THE

ADAMAS LAW MOOT COURT COMMITTEE

The Adamas Law Moot Court Committee (ALMCC) is a student-led committee within the School of Law and Justice which fosters legal advocacy skills and experiential learning in the field of law. Comprising dedicated students and encouraging faculty convenors, the committee is responsible for organizing numerous National Moot Court Competitions and conducting sessions to impart skills like orating, advocacy, and critical analysis within the aspiring legal minds, which are the pivotal attributes of a legal professional. The committee also organizes Intra Moot Court Competitions in order to enable inexperienced young pupils to collaborate with the experienced ones and come forward with various neoteric solutions to combat legal challenges which are presented to them in the form of moot propositions. By creating a dynamic and supportive environment, the committee contributes significantly to the overall legal education experience, preparing law students for the challenges they may encounter in real-world legal practice.
