MOOT PROPOSITION

1. The Republic of Vedasurya, a sovereign democratic nation, prides itself on its commitment to the rule of law, justice, and constitutional freedoms. Among its vibrant states, Indraprastha stands as a prominent legal and commercial hub, renowned for its dynamic judicial system and vibrant marketplace. The interplay between individual rights and corporate interests often emerges as a focal point in the state's legal discourse, reflective of the broader principles enshrined in Vedasurya's Constitution.
2. The rise of social media platforms has transformed the landscape of public discourse in Vedasurya, empowering individuals to voice their opinions and critiques with unprecedented reach and immediacy. Platforms like YouTube, Instagram, and others serve as influential arenas where consumers, influencers, and corporations interact.
3. While this digital ecosystem democratizes information and enhances transparency, it also raises significant legal and ethical concerns about the limits of freedom of expression, especially when it intersects with corporate interests and brand reputation.
4. Arjun Singh, a fitness professional and social media influencer, is known for his reviews of dairy and fitness products, which he claims are grounded in third-party laboratory tests. In January 2024, he purchased the product "XYZ Ghee" from XYZ Nutrition Private Limited (XYZ Nutrition) using a proxy email ID and submitted it for analysis to NutraLab Analytics, a third-party private testing agency. The lab reports indicated that the product was adulterated with "palm oil"- and the milk fat was found to be 82 % by wt.while the acceptable prescribed specification is minimum of 99.6% by wt.

5. Following the receipt of these results, Arjun Singh uploaded a video on his YouTube channel presenting the lab findings. While primarily focusing on the lab evidence, the video contained critical commentary comparing “XYZ Ghee” to other competing products, suggesting that XYZ Nutrition's product lacked the authenticity promised by its trademarked branding. Arjun's comments included statements such as, “This product is not just a failure, but a betrayal of the trust their brand name builds,” which XYZ Nutrition claimed disparaged their trademark and diminished its goodwill in the market.

6. XYZ Nutrition responded strongly, denying the allegations and accusing Arjun Singh of intentionally misrepresenting facts to tarnish its trademark and brand reputation. The company alleged that Arjun Singh's actions were influenced by competitors and filed a commercial suit against Arjun Singh at High Court of Indraprastha, seeking an injunction to take down the video and compensation for defamation and trademark disparagement.

7. Subsequently, the FSSAI of Vedasurya (FSSAI) suspended XYZ Nutrition's manufacturing license, citing regulatory violations. XYZ Nutrition contested this action, asserting it was a knee-jerk reaction to public outrage fueled by the video and lacked due investigation. The High Court of Indraprastha held that a commercial suit was not maintainable against Arjun Singh and denied the relief sought by XYZ Nutrition.

XYZ Nutrition has now approached the Supreme Court of Vedasurya.
